Regular Meeting of the City Council
Monday Evening.

Petition Presented Regarding Nevada
Avenue Railroad Crossing.

Reservoir Passed Providing for Work
On the New Reservoir.

Other Business of a Large-y Routine
Character Transacted.

A regular meeting of the city council was held Monday evening with Mayor Strieck and A. German Skinner, Layton, Calaway, Lennox, Bartlett and Imeh being present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

A petition was presented, signed by Messrs. George Adams, M. G. Newman and others, requesting an extension of the water main from the Santa Fe bridge east on Colorado street.

A similar petition was presented by Mrs. Candy Naylor for an extension of the water main in the valley between Weber street and Nevada avenue, about 20 feet in length's addition. Both petitions were on motion referred to the committee on water works.

The following petition was presented, signed by thirty-nine citizens.

To the city council of the city of Colorado Springs:

We, the undersigned citizens of Colorado Springs, would respectfully ask your body to examine the Nevada avenue crossing of the Denver & the Colorado rail road and see if, in your judgment, that the rail road company should not place a barrier there to avoid accidents, as we consider it very dangerous—as excepting the Manitou road, there is more travel upon that road in the county.

The petition was referred to the committee on streets and avenues.

COLORADO SPRINGS, September 1, Mrs. B. Liss Wood, President Women's Aid Society, Colorado Springs.

DEAR MAMMIE:—With great pleasure and interest for the benevolence and proposition regarding the right of way for the sewer mains through its property on North Weber street, I agreed to give the right of way on condition that the price was not to exceed fifteen dollars per foot, then the estimated grade and dimensions by one foot of concrete. The city engineer estimated the additional cost for connecting with the general sewer system at $150 to $200. The committee, after consultation with the city attorney, thought that it would be better to accept General Skinner's proposition than to enter into litigation with him.

The report of the committee was on motion adopted.

A certain Calaway, from the committee on public grounds and buildings, reported against a owing the bill of the Colorado electric company for $1000 furnished. The report was adopted.

A certain Calaway, from the committee on streets and avenues, reported that the new line over Monument creek, was complete, and that water was running in the ditch.

A certain Calaway, from the water works committee, reported that the city treasurer had drawn on the town of Manitou for the amount of the city for water pipe, one issued by the former city.

The monthly reports of the police magistrate and city treasurer were read and placed on file. The balance in the city treasury, as shown by the treasurer's report, is $50,349.93.

The following bills were audited and approved:

Moshene, though & Moore, work on switches, $300.00

Engineers work on sewer, $63.00

A certain Calaway introduced the following resolution:

Resolved, By the city council of the city of Colorado Springs, that the sum of $3,000 be expended on the irrigation storage reservoir located in the south eastern part of the city, said expenditure to be made by the direction and under the direction of the city engineer and the committee on streets, as far as possible and as necessary by the city engineer to be made in its original reservoir.

A certain Calaway, after the resolution and said that it was $3000 thrown away. There was no water to fill the reservoir. He said that the Colorado Springs company would give the city the amount the city wanted it for that company would derive the benefit.

A certain Calaway, differed with A. German Skinner, he understood that there was a large majority of the tax paying citizens who wanted something done on the new reservoir. He thought that the city engineers to their constituents to do something in regard to the matter.

A certain Calaway stated that the city could be irrigated from the reservoir as far north as Custer on Poudre street.

A certain Calaway wanted to know what the city would do with the reservoir when it got full. He said there was no water to fill it. A German Skinner, in the prior water right on the Monument and would not let the city have the water unless in case the ditch of his company in repair. He could not see the policy in spending $5,000 for a reservoir when it would cost $10,000 to get water to it.

The resolution was adopted by the following vote: Ayes, Lennox, Bartlett, Calaway, mays, Skinner. Aye, Stevens, Stevens, Studens.

The GAZETTE received a copy of the issue of the Advertiser, (Lafayette) Union of August 26th, containing the following notice of the death of Mr. John C. Cooker, formerly of this city: "Mr. John C. Cooker, who died yesterday a victim of the prevailing fever, was 66 years of age, and a native of Winchester, Va. He came to this city about eighteen months ago from Colorado Springs, Colo., and became associated with his son, E. S. Cooker, in the well-known coffee and tea business at No. 28 Ocean street. Previous to removing to Colorado where he resided for about seven years, he had been a resident of the city of Cincinnati for a period of twenty-nine years, where he was well and highly known—having been for a number of years prominently identified with the ministry in its council, board of education, and later, the board of public works. Mr. Cooker was a man of steady attainments, and of retiring disposition. His early life was characterized with the strenuous and sacrifices incident to the securing of an education, but so proficient is he become through his own efforts that at the age of 17 he has little himself for teaching, while his profession is to owe for two years, besides his wife and son, residents of this city. Mr. Cooker leaves another son, Mr. James, a native of Cincinnati, and a daughter, the wife of Rev. William Osborn of Colorado, Colorado. Mr. Cooker served during the civil war as first lieutenant of Company E of the Forty-fifth Ohio volunteer infantry."

Mr. Grafton of Manitou was nominated by acclamation. This was a high tribute to him. He deserves well of his party and of the county.

The county convention undoubtedly represented the sentiment of this county in declaring in favor of J. A. Cooper for governor. He is by far the most available candidate that the republicans can select from those aspiring to this high office.

The republican majority in Vermont in yesterday's election is estimated at 25,000 to 30,000, which is the largest given the party in that state since the war. Evidently the republican party is not on the verge of disintegration in the Green Mountain state.

The recent accounts of the atrocities practiced by the army of the sultan of Morocco will shock the civilized world. As a nineteenth century humanitarian the sultan is not a success, and it would be taken in hand by France or some other European power.

Mr. Ford got a fair majority in the convention. There is still considerable bitterness on the Divide, but this will disappear as the campaign advances. He was elected to the legislature six years ago and this should give him some familiarity with the work which is before him.

Vermont holds an election for state officers to day. While the result is not foregone conclusion, the size of the republican majority may convey an idea of the popularity and strength of the republican national ticket in the Green Mountain state. The republicans expect to carry the state by 30,000 majority.

The nature of the republican tariff bill to be reported to the senate by the finance committee is exciting considerable speculation. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: "The senate tariff bill, from the hints of its scope and purpose which we have seen, is intended to reduce the revenues about $60,000,000. It reduces the duty on sugar 40 per cent, on rice and lumber each 50 per cent, and also gives the internal tax on fruit spirits and on alcohol used in the arts. The cut in the internal taxes and in the duties on sugar and rice is heavier than that proposed for the party.

in the bill. The duties on wool, woolen goods and salt are unchanged. The number of interests will probably oppose the senate measure, although it leaves their brother with some protection, while the house of representatives has the bill.

The most influential delegation at the state convention was that sent from this county. Fortunately there was no aspirant for a position on the state ticket from this county. As a result the position of the E. Paso delegation had great influence. It was generally known that it did not favor Mr. Cooper from an interested motive. It was the result of a trade because E. Paso county did not ask for anything but a good state ticket. Other delegations agreed with E. Paso county, but were embarrassed with candidates for state offices and, therefore, could not take so decided a stand. It would be an excellent thing if this policy were continued. This would not necessarily exclude E. Paso county from being represented on the state ticket. It would result in the nomination of an E. Paso man, not through the vicious practice of trading, but because the state at large would recognize the disinterested and patriotic party acts of E. Paso county republicans.

The following extract from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat shows how it comes in the seat south which such a power in the legislative council of the nation: "At the last election for congress Georgia cast 25,396 votes for ten representatives, as follows: Wood, 2,061; Turner, 2,411; Crisp, 1,701; Grimes, 2,109; Stewart, 2,949; B. Count, 1,752; C. Clements, 5,043; Carton, 2,267; Gardner, 2,355; and Barnes, 1,945. At the same time an election was held in Dakota, where 24,021 votes were polled, not a single one of which has any power in the selection of a representative in the country of the nation. Twenty-five thousand three hundred and ninety-five voters in Georgia elected ten congressmen, while not quite as many voters in Dakota did not elect a single one. Of the votes cast in Dakota 66,892, or nearly two-thirds were republicans."

No elections state officers next Tuesday. Both parties have made a thorough and energetic canvass of the state. The democrats have nominated a railroad magnate for governor, and hope to receive the support of all the railroad corporations in the state. They will make a strong effort to defeat Congressmen, who was elected two years ago by a small plurality. Aim to that they have enlisted the services of John W. Patterson, of this state. As Maine has been considered debatable ground, in a number of elections, the result of the present contest will excite more than ordinary interest.

The recent canvass of New York conducted under the direction of the democratic national committee did not give much encouragement to the democratic campaign managers. They found that the republicans were receiving large concessions in the northern and western counties, and that a remarkable degree of apathy was manifested among the Democratic ward workers in New York and Brooklyn. Chairman Brice intended to publish the result of this canvass had it been favorable to his party, but he and his colleagues on the campaign committee have preserved an ominous silence regarding it. The canvass, however, has the democrats to one conclusion, namely, that Governor W. H. Smith must be nominated in order to hold the party together. As he is nominated the issue between him and ex-Senator of Warner Miller, the republican candidate, will be clearly defined. The latter has been clearly shown to be entirely in sympathy with the liquor license policy which the republican party has pursued in the Empire state. Governor W. H. Smith has been marked by his complete subordination to the liquor interests of the state. The prohibitionists will thus have a good opportunity to manifest their sincerity in the cause of temperance by aiding the election of Mr. Miller rather than supporting him by voting for their own candidate, they will vote with their interest. Under these circumstances it should not be hard for a fair-minded temperance man to know which way to vote.

President Cleveland has subscribed $10,000 to the democratic campaign fund and several of his cabinet members have given a like amount. This contribution of the president it is said will incite a spirit of liberality among subordinate office holders.

The democrats mean to use every advantage which political demagogery and money will bring to them. In many of the government offices the civil service rules concerning political assessments have been openly violated. Under these circumstances it is difficult to understand how the president expects to receive the support of the mugwumps.

Two democratic candidates for congress in a Missouri district, tossed up a coin to see who should receive the nomination of $8,000. Unfortunately for the people of the district the defeated candidate controlled enough votes to nominate his opponent, and the man who won the toss addressed the convention and expressed himself as being seriously affected by the honor conferred upon him. The premium on statesmanship in Missouri, particularly in democratic circles, has not increased much in recent years.

Governor Thompson of South Carolina is quoted as declaring that the greatest problem now before the people of that state was how to govern 40,000 negroes with $40,000 whites. It is strange that he should have forgotten that the democrats have mastered that question in several of the southern states.

The recent attempt on the part of the democratic to attribute to General Harrison the statement that a dollar a day was enough wages for any workingman has been notorious. When the democrats resort to mud slinging tactics, it only shows how desperate their chances of success have become.

The zeal shown by both houses of congress to enact laws against the Chinese is a good example of the extent to which the average congressman will go in order to make political capital for himself and his party.

It is urged by the advocates of the papers read by the working people. Be party in the state. They had seen that, while politicians might name the man, the people only could elect him and they determined that the candidate should be one to please the voters rather than the politicians. The canvass of Mr. Cooper began very late. He did not have any time to speak to the people, and the three papers, the Post and the Times, with much less circulation, are reaching a large constituency of intelligent readers. For this reason the republican ticket, there is only the Tribune, the Press and the Mail and Express. These three papers have a less circulation than the New York World. While unrepresented republicans are the laboring people are less great, less vote for very solid for Garrison, yet the power of these papers must be great for the campaign, however. None of these republican papers show the ability to discuss the issues of the campaign.

The Times, Post and World show.

While the republicans need now most of a great newspaper, aby editor, to counteract the immeasurable superior influence of the Chinese and organs.

The following extract of the republican canvass for governor, is from the Denver Times of yesterday:

Job W. Cooper was born November 6, 1843, in Bond County, Illinois. He left the farm and entered the preparatory department of Knox College at the age of 16. Knox having fewer students than now, the many arduous duties and places of responsibility developed upon him. Thus he received the thorough training and mental discipline to which he ascribes much of his success in life, and the inspiration and encouragement which he has in his active life, in turn, given to his alma mater. His college course was broken into by a call to his country's service, but resumed in time to graduate in 1865. After leaving college he studied law, was admitted to the bar and practiced in Greenville, Illinois. In 1872 he left for the West and settled in Denver, where his tact and energy soon brought him to prominence, and put him into influential positions as a graduate of the law. He was given a great opportunity to aid in shaping the future destiny of this city, both in its educational and municipal life. He was well versed and successful in the law, making his regular life business, and with such success that he has been compelled to take an active interest in several of the railroad enterprises that have helped to make Denver so important a railroad center. Mining interests also have had a large share of his attention, with profit to himself and others. While he helped along the growing interests of the state, he entered into the business of cattle raising, until his herds were counted by tens of thousands. In short, he is identified with most of the plans and enterprises for the advancement and prosperity of his chosen home and state. In his prosperity he has not been unmindful of the comfort of his family, and has placed them in one of the most beautiful of the pastoral residences of this city of beautiful homes. His home in Capitol Hill, commanding a view of the capitol, the city and the magnificent stretch of mountain scenery for scores of miles.

We regret that the senate in discussing the Chinese treaty has voted at this whole question of cheap labor in such a narrow way. We are threatened with just exactly the same kind of danger from the pauper labor of Europe as from the pauper labor of China. It is only a question of degree. Besides, the pauper labor that has recently been imported from Europe has been of an even more vicious character than the supposed to be in favor with the executive.

Without such information the senate did not rush into the passage of the

SEPTEMBER HEALTH NOTES

Dr. William A. Hammond Gives Some Sound Advice to Parents.

Many people who have been sensible enough to spend the summer in the country look forward to September as the month in which they are to return to town and resume the avocations from which they sought to escape in the early summer. Last winter year they go through the same experience but scarcely less intense than that of July, to which is succeeded a degree of miasma in excess of any that my summer sojourn may reveal this time that next year will stay away until October, but each season sees the resolution broken in fact our social customs are such that it is almost impossible, except with those who have nothing to do, to remain away until the autumn is fully ripe.

There is an area very prevalent that sewer gas is one of the most efficient of malaria influences. No one is, however, more erroneous than this, it is quite doubtful that sewer gas such as we find in our residences is as noxious to those subject to it as intense. It is not certain that it does not give rise to any form of malaria disease. Malaria germs are certain kinds of micro-organisms which come from the soil and which cannot develop from any other source. A great tea or nonsense has been written about the toxic properties of sewer gas and the members of a new profession, called themselves "sanitary engineers" invade our houses and everything to try to find in their efforts to do a good service, and, having found it, they congratulate us that they have saved us from some terrible disease or other, while there is no or no necessity for the "engineers" to expense they have caused us of the infections they have ordered us. Of course, the same is true of any disease and are to be avoided when possible, but every unclean odor is by no means a poisonous one and certain types are not as "airy" or "foul" as sewer gas ever causes a single case of disease. Under the circumstances, the concern of parents from sewers such as persons are exposed to who go down into them with as much impunity as a stroke of lightning, but such cases are quite exceptional. The workmen who row their boats through the Paris sewers are conducting robbers, or exposing them to visitors, as is certainly the case with those who work above ground, and as the rats where are "atter and seeter ones" found.

Another erroneous notion is that which attributes malaria diseases to the exhalations from the ground through which gas pipes pass when it turns up, as it is more or less every month in the year in our large cities. Other agencies than eliminating gas are set for curing such operations, but these not being endowed with a power pass unneeded, though potent causes of health in these exposed to their influence. Eliminating gas, however unpleasant it may be under such circumstances, is certainly not, in the strict form in which it reaches our lungs, productive of any known disease. On the contrary, it is in some respects advantageous to health. It is destructive of the cellular organism which gives rise to whooping cough, and it is disposed to turn from incrustations that have made in relation to the point that malaria germs cannot stand in their.

Finally, those continually returning to their own during September I would say "Don't" if you can possibly avoid so doing. Give yourself and your children one additional month at the seashore, or the lakes, or the mountains. There are many places within a hundred miles of New York where the temperature during September does not rise above 70 degrees nor below 32. This is perfect time so far as health is concerned, and you and a wife are going to you will be well and better, menu, and always, give longer and better purpose if you can manage to enjoy it.

WILLIAM A. HAMMOND.

On September 17th, 1881 and 1882 Yacacme Yoreas will also be the inmate of the Sanitarium in winter. She has a ready received a nice assortment of novelties and some new says in early autumn from Paris, France, and Yacacme Yoreas will be the first to receive them. The first prize will be a citizens' purse of silk to the best citizen, orange, and yellow, a second best.

Mr. E. H. Stevens Monday morning began the erection of a large brick barn on the rear of his No. 22 South Tejon street. The barn will be 75 feet long and will accommodate about thirty horses. The present building will be used entirely for carriages and will be the largest carriage room in the city. The new building has been made necessary by Mr. Stevens' increasing business and will be complete in every respect.

Another point which demands attention during the month of September and is one which concerns nearly every person of the United States is that of malaria. It is a common disease that greater risk is run from this cause of disease in the country than in towns and cities, but there are strong reasons for doubting that such is the case, so far as any under the influence of the country itself is concerned. If a farmhouse is located in a swampy situation and a town in a similar locality the disease is the one who is no more liable to miasma than the inhabitants of the other. In large cities, where the ground is being constantly turned up for the purpose of laying water and gas mains, constructing sewers or for other purposes for which a continuous removal of the pavements goes on, a series of malaria is most common and abundant. Some parts of New York city, or of Palace Plaza, for instance, are nearly as full of malaria as are the worst parts of Africa. There is no aling, therefore, to be gained in this respect, as an early return from the services or the mountains to the bent-up atmosphere of a large town in which excavations of some kind or other are at this season on will more than usual.

There is an area very prevalent that sewer gas is one of the most efficient of malaria influences. No one is, however, more erroneous than this, it is quite doubtful that sewer gas such as we find in our residences is as noxious to those subject to it as intense.

It is not certain that it does not give rise to any form of malaria disease. Malaria germs are certain kinds of micro-organisms which come from the soil and which cannot develop from any other source.

Special Correspondence.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—One is hardly surprised to look for new literary work in truth, it is an accepted fact that business and literature seem to stand in name, and least of all to expect to find a poet engaged in the prosaic employment of being carpet. Mr. Robert Kidson, who has made quite a reputation as writer of clever verses, and books to taste, and as a companion book of poems, which is now in press, the latter strange surprise, "By Robert Kidson, Singer of Songs and Author of Carols."

ONE OF EL PASO'S INDUSTRIES.

The Sixth District Cattle Growers' Association.
HEADQUARTERS,
COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.,
President—W. M. Stricker.
Vice President—Chauncey C. Cawaway.
Secretary and Treasurer—C. A. Lanning.
Executive Committee—Bernard G. G.,
F. A. Waters, F. E. Baker.
Round-up Commissioners—Bernard G. G., C. A. Lanning, T. E. Lowe.
Foreman of the Round-up—C. A. Lanning.
THE ASSOCIATION.
Although the association is yet in its infancy, it has already a good-sized membership and has accomplished some good work. It is for its object the protection of its members and the cattle interests of the Sixth district. Moving herds are inspected thoroughly and the quarantines are rigorously enforced. A赏ing reward of $100 is offered for the detection, prosecution and conviction of cattle thieves. The membership fees of the association are only $50 per year, which amount entitles the members to the protection that the association affords. Blank books are also issued which are of inestimable value to cattle owners. Those desiring to become members should send their names to the secretary at Colorado Springs. The officers are all active cattle men and will, in their power to further the interests of the association and its members.
